Towards a Circular Economy: A Workshop for Parliamentarians and Parliamentary Staff of Trinidad and Tobago

Recognizing that parliaments can play a key role in supporting the integration of circular economic models through their legislative functions, this national level workshop, in follow-up to the 17th ParlAmericas Plenary Assembly: Towards a Circular Economy, discussed legislative strategies to support a national transition to circularity, such as the review of fiscal incentives or the creation of legal frameworks to promote a green growth, ensuring they respond to the needs of women and marginalized communities. As a framework that decouples economic activity from environmental degradation, a circular economy helps to support green post COVID-19 economic recovery efforts and improve human wellbeing.

MAIN TAKEAWAYS OF THE WORKSHOP

- Transitioning to a circular economy requires examination of the production and consumption models for goods and services across all sectors
- Parliament can advocate for an overarching national strategy on circular economy utilizing incentive mechanisms and standards
- The empowerment and substantive participation of communities, and especially of youth and women, supports behaviour change and can help to ensure that programs and policies are accessible to all
- Regional collaboration strengthens innovation and the opening of the circular economy value chain, which helps to address the challenges faced by small economies in the Caribbean
